'Putting children at the heart of everything we do' is a great aspiration for agencies working with children, but it poses challenges about how we hear and listen to children's views about the vast range of issues which concern us all. For providers of services and for local authorities feedback is one way of listening and is an area we need to demonstrate and continually improve upon.

As a children's rights organisation NYAS is always looking for ways in which to obtain meaningful feedback from children and young people. We know how difficult it can be for vulnerable children and young people to express themselves.

'Word Up!' is an interactive floorboard game which has been developed by NYAS with children and young people as a result of looking at what works them. It is a fun activity that can be adapted for use in a variety of settings and across a range of services.
